

Potsdam Graduate School

The Potsdam Graduate School (PoGS) is the skills and advising center for PhD candidates, postdocs, junior professors and new appointees at the University of Potsdam and their external cooperation partners. It works with the various departments to ensure optimal study conditions for PhDs, and provides its members with a wide range of training opportunities beyond their specific research fields. In addition, it offers funding, numerous networking formats and personal development opportunities for individual career planning.

The PoGS is also part of the state-wide Postdoc Network Brandenburg. The network assists the career development of PhD graduates beyond the boundaries of academic institutions and research disciplines.
