6. News from the Institutsrat

CLASSIFIED

7. Master thesis topics

From Silke who can't be there today: Tilo has made me aware that there are some rules regarding where you are allowed to write your master thesis and where not (you need 50% natural science). Apparently anything from communication and economics is not allowed because it is not quantitative enough, says Jan Härter. I think there is a lot of unclarity, and even Andreas gives contradicting advice. I think we should approach this maybe with the study commission, because right now it seems very intransparent what you are allowed to do and what not - especially with economics as this is one of our 4 pillars in CLEWS.

Plan: Approach Andreas or study commission (Discord channel), we want these rules to be clearly communicated to everyone, not only on a case-to-case basis. Also, are these rules interdisciplinary enough?
